Jazmine

Age Range 18-24

Hi, my name is Jazmine.
I'm starting college in the spring; I took a gap semester to travel. My parents are worried about me moving away. I'm more worried about finding vegan restaurants or restaurants with vegan options near my school.

Alfredo

Age Range 25-30

Hello, my name is Alfredo. I am a remote Junior Data Analyst at a consumer research agency in Burbank. My favorite vegan restaurant is on my jogging route with my 2 Pomeranians, Sugar and Spice. I get my dietary supplements from the local drugstore, but not only are they more than 50 bucks, but the packaging also is not sustainable.

Adriana

Age Range 25-30

Hi, my name is Adriana. My partner and I matched on a dating app based on our vegan dietary preferences, our love of fitness and love for the environment. We live a mostly vegan lifestyle. The only struggle we have is with protein shakes since there aren't many vegan options. The few brands with vegan options are so out of our price ranges.

Michael
Age Range 38+

Hi, my name is Michael.
My family and I have been enjoying meatless Mondays for the past 6 months, not only is it budget-friendly, but we love the plant-based meat substitutes. It's difficult to find a community to learn and guide our transition to a vegan lifestyle living in the suburbs in Michigan, Meatless Mondays can also be a chore, as one of the breadwinners, and primary shoppers for my family I really have to plan ahead.

The Gardener

Hello, my name is Asia. A nurse by night gardener by day, I love planting cucumbers, carrots, and tomatoes, my favorites are squash during the spring harvest. I would consider myself a low-carb vegan to help reduce my blood pressure. Social eating can be complicated as a low-carb vegan, especially when I go out with my friends, I feel peer-pressured to avoid feeling left out.

The Allergic Eater

Hi, my name is Gloria. I'm allergic to many types of food, most of these foods are cheeses, and processed foods. I also struggle with nuts and citrus fruits which are my trigger foods that make it harder to be vegan. With my low iron, there are situations where the only gluten-free option isn't vegan, and the only vegan option isn't gluten-free, creating another significant restriction.

The Transplants

Hi, we're - Jen and Jess.
We moved to Houston after graduating. It's scary living away from family and friends but we've been having a blast meeting some of the vegan communities, but it's a little harder to maintain a vegan lifestyle with a BBQ joint every 5-mile radius. Plus the process of finding a specific vegan diet that works with our lifestyle has been rough. Our biggest fears are that vegan diets and supplements needed are so confusing, and restrictive and fail to meet our nutritional needs long-term.

Restrictions

Hello, my name is Claire.
I currently take supplements to help with my dietary restrictions. Most healthy vegan foods are too high in fiber for me, and the raw foods upset my gut. An area stricken with low access to fresh affordable produces, and my neighborhood lives below the median income in the state. I also felt tired, probably from not eating enough.

The Over Researcher

Hi, my name is Martha,
Really, I have no problems with vegan or veganism lifestyles, it's just I heard from my Mommy and Me class, that strict healthy eating itself, like vegetarianism or veganism, is an eating disorder called "orthorexia Nervosa." Probably heard it from her doctor. When I googled it and found information on Facebook groups, I found many plant sources of protein, like beans and nuts, have too much phosphorus and potassium. Is it true that plants may have too much phosphorus for my diet?

#Nourishtheculture

Since migrating from Vietnam, I've found some "American" foods and others that I can't understand. Last week, at lunch, a colleague mentioned they were "Going vegan", I was surprised when she opened a bowl with vegetables and rice, with a slice of tuna. I guess compared to this country the food portions in Vietnam are smaller, and mostly contain rice veggies, and fish.
Does that mean when I make a Vietnamese dish I'm going "vegan"?
